Notes

Iconic architectural landmark in Palm Springs. Designed by Richard Neutra in 1946, this masterpiece of mid-century modern architecture features clean lines, an open floor plan, and a graphic connection to the surrounding desert landscape. The beautifully landscaped courtyard and pool area is surrounded by palm trees and other desert plants.

The interior of the house is characterized by a minimalist aesthetic and an innovative use of materials, including glass, steel, and stone. Simple and elegant furnishings create a sense of calm and serenity. The large windows and sliding glass doors allow for plenty of natural light.
